GROVER CLEVELAND GRISMORE

IN MEMORIAM

It is fitting that the members of the Class of 1952 of the Michigan Law School, on the eve of their entry into the legal profession, pause to honor the memory of one who gave to them the benefit of his years of study and his brilliant and comprehensive knowledge of the law. The combination of ability and diligence which Professor Grismore possessed resulted in a great contribution to the legal profession, not only in the form of published work, but also in his exacting and careful classroom exposition of the law.

From the time he began his teaching career in 1914 until his untimely death in 1951, Professor Grismore achieved the highest standards of integrity and performance. We who were the last class to be taught by him were privileged to have known him, and it is with deepest respect that we pay tribute to his memory.

hutchins hall

Classroom and faculty offices are located in Hutchins Hall, the last unit of the Law Quadrangle to be completed. It was named in honor of Harry B. Hutchins, Dean of the Law School from 1895 to 1910, and President of the University of Michigan from 1910 to 1920.

Hutchins Hall contains nine classrooms, with seating capacities ranging from 50 to 250 students each, four seminar rooms used for meetings of small groups, and a Practice Court room. There is also a large reading room with adjoining stacks for a small reference library. Class rooms are constructed for maximum comfort and convenience, with student tables and chairs arranged in amphitheater form on tiers rising toward the rear of the room. Among practical features of the building are the rubber tile floors and acoustical plaster in the classrooms.

Faculty and administrative offices of the Law School are on the third and fourth floors of Hutchins Hall, and on the third floor is a faculty study room and library, large enough to hold about 25,000 volumes. Headquarters of the Michigan Law Review and the Journal of the American Judicature Society are located on the fourth floor.

A unique alumni room is a special feature of the first floor. It contains numerous items of special interest to former students, including a display of class pictures beginning with the Class of 1873.

Among the notable architectural features of Hutchins Hall are the many inscriptions and quotations, carved in stone or worked into the windows in stained glass and lead. Colored cartoons depicting legal situations have been set in the windows of the first floor corridors surrounding the center courtyard. The seals of the State of Michigan and the University, and the quill and scales of justice, well-known symbols of the legal profession, are carved on the outside of the building.

As a part of the School program, two major series of lectures are offered annually, open to law students and to the general public. These are the William W. Cook Lectures on American Institutions, and the Thomas M. Cooley Lectures. The Cook Lectures were established by the donor to disseminate understanding of institutions regarded as peculiarly American — institutions that have made notable contributions to the American way of life. The Cooley Lectures are designed to encourage the discussion of timely topics of a more distinctly professional character. These lectures are published and are made generally available to all who are interested.

THOMAS McINTYRE COOLEY

Professor of Law from 1859 to 1884, Dean of the Law School, 1871 to 1883, Cooley was also the author of important volumes on Constitutional Limitations, Taxation, and Torts. He was one of the leading authorities of his time on Constitutional Law.

FROM THE WILL OF
WILLIAM W COOK

BELIEVING AS I DO THAT AMERICAN INSTITUTIONS ARE OF MORE CONSEQUENCE THAN THE WEALTH OR POWER OF THE COUNTRY AND BELIEVING THAT THE PRESERVATION AND DEVELOPMENT OF THESE INSTITUTIONS HAVE BEEN ARE AND WILL CONTINUE TO BE UNDER THE LEADERSHIP OF THE LEGAL PROFESSION AND BELIEVING ALSO THAT THE FUTURE OF AMERICA DEPENDS LARGELY ON THAT PROFESSION AND BELIEVING THAT THE CHARACTER OF THE LAW SCHOOLS DETERMINES THE CHARACTER OF THE LEGAL PROFESSION I WISH TO AID IN ENLARGING THE SCOPE AND IMPROVING THE STANDARDS OF THE LAW SCHOOLS BY AIDING THE ONE FROM WHICH I GRADUATED NAMELY THE LAW SCHOOL OF THE UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN

LEGAL RESEARCH BUILDING

The Law Library, most of which is housed in the Legal Research Building, is administered by a librarian assisted by a staff of seventeen employees. The director of the library is Hobart Coffey, Professor of Law. Included in the Library staff are graduate lawyers, specialists in foreign law and jurisprudence, trained linguists, and specialists in modern library methods. In recent years the Library has become one of the outstanding collections in America. It is the largest law library west of the Atlantic seaboard and is rapidly becoming an important center of legal research, not only for the faculty and students of the Law School but for lawyers, judges, and scholars from other institutions.

On July 1, 1951, the Library contained 223,144 bound volumes, in addition to large numbers of pamphlets, reprints, documents, etc., which are not included in the statistics. The collection includes all published reports of the American federal and state courts, and also the court reports of the British Empire, and of the principal European and South American countries. The constitutions, codes, and statutes of most of the foreign countries as well as of the American states are kept up to date. A large section of the Library is devoted to treatises on all phases of law and legal science, and there are extensive special collections in the fields of Roman law, international law, criminology, trials, briefs and transcripts, and biography. The Library contains nearly complete files of the leading periodicals published throughout the world.

The Michigan Law Review is published under the auspices of the Law School, to give expression to the legal scholarships of the University and to serve the profession and the public by timely discussion of legal problems. It was organized in the spring of 1902 and has been published without interruption since that time. Originally the Editor-in-Chief was a member of the faculty and was assisted by an advisory board consisting of the Dean and two other members of the faculty. Most of the writing was done by faculty members, although a board of student assistants was chosen from the senior class.

Since the beginning, the importance of student editors has grown until today virtually all the notes on recent decisions and comments are contributed by students, who are chosen on the basis of scholarship for a try-out period. The student editors are chosen from the senior class on the basis of scholarship and editorial aptitude.

Each issue of the Review contains five sections devoted respectively to the following: leading articles on important and interesting legal subjects; comments on current topics and significant occurrences in the legal world; notes on outstanding recent cases; index of articles and comments in current legal periodicals; and book notes on current legal literature.

case clubs

The Case Clubs are an all-student institution devoted to training in legal argumentation. The Clubs are designed to develop legal skill in appellate advocacy and in applying the law to practical situations, by preparation and presentation of a case to an appellate court. As the largest organization in the Law School, the Clubs are one of the distinctive features of the school and a leading organization of this type among American law schools.

There are sixteen Clubs, named for distinguished Michigan jurists. The Senior Judge of each Club is the member who compiled the highest score in his Club during the preceding two years. His assistant is the Junior Clerk, the member with the highest individual score during his first year. Other senior members act as advisors for the lower classmen, and, together with faculty members, sit as judges on the cases. Junior members also act as advisors to Freshmen.

Competition between Case Clubs is emphasized to add interest and incentive. Members of a Club in teams of two counsel of the same class compete with a team from another Club. Counsel are given a realistic case in the field of one of their current courses. They then analyze the case and look up the law. Written briefs are prepared in approved appellate form and oral arguments are held before a bench of three judges. Individual and Club scores are awarded.

The court consists of a senior judge, an associate, who is a member of the senior class, and a junior associate. Counsel are freshman. On the cases which members of the junior class argue in the fall term, there is one faculty judge and two seniors.

Freshmen participate in one case each semester, and juniors in one case in the fall semester. On the basis of their two years' competition, juniors of the leading Clubs enter the eliminations for the Henry M. Campbell Award, each Club being represented by its two members who have the highest scores as oral advocates. The two winning teams argue before a distinguished bench of visiting judges. The Campbell Award and numerous other prizes and awards are presented to Clubs and individuals at a banquet, following the final arguments. This annual Case Club Day is one of the high points of the Law School year.

LAW SCHOOL TO CHOOSE INA CLASS OFFICERS

The members of the Love School will use the prize money to finance an AIDS effort and these efforts for work of the United Nations Trust. Dwight Veith, a school spokesman, stated that the prize would be located on the first floor of Hartline Hall and would be given from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday.

LAW INSTITUTE HERE
THIS WEEK END

The Institute on Labor and American Society will be the first of a series of five programs held. The first will be in session on Friday, January 10. Other programs will be scheduled on February 17, March 17, April 14 and May 19. These meetings will be open to any student at the University.

It is expected that those with the seventh featured trophy from every part of the Middle East have been invited to the ceremony at the location. The program should prove to be an extremely lively one, as it will deal with the numerous problems and problems involved in the region. The program will be held in the form of a round table discussion. The program will be held in the form of a round table discussion. The program will be held in the form of a round table discussion.

LAWYERS CLUB

The Lawyers Club and adjoining John P. Cook buildings are a part of the W. W. Cook Law Quadrangle, a gift to the University and to legal education by the late William W. Cook, of the New York bar, graduate of the University of Michigan Law School, class of 1882. The Quadrangle itself is situated on a ten-acre tract immediately south of the central University campus. The Lawyers Club, completed in 1924, was the first unit of the Quadrangle to be erected, and originally contained residence accommodations for 142. Additional residences are located in the John P. Cook building, named in honor of the donor's father and located adjacent to the Lawyers Club on the east side of the Quadrangle. The 119 students accommodated in this building have full use of the Club facilities to the extent that it is popularly considered a part of the Club itself. Because of the crowded post-war conditions, extra beds were installed in both residence buildings, so that together they now provide housing for 370 men. There is also a large dining hall, situated on the west side of the Quadrangle.

Students may spend their leisure hours in the lounge, adjoining the dining hall. It is Renaissance in style, with high, vaulted ceiling with a design in relief. Here there are easy chairs and a complete supply of current periodicals, as well as a large collection of classical records. The recreation hall, in the basement of the Lawyers Club, offers ping-pong and card tables, television, and a student-operated store.

Alumni have guest privileges in the dormitory and dining hall, and may also use the recreational facilities of the Club.

The direction of the Lawyers Club is by a Board of Governors, composed of members of the faculty, Board of Regents, State Judiciary, and practicing lawyers, and students.

The Lawyers Club is of late Jacobean Gothic architecture and combines with the other buildings of the Quadrangle to achieve the maximum of convenience, beauty, and adaptation to its purpose.
